Dear Church family,

I was fourteen-years-old when my father passed away. It was very difficult time for me. I did not make it easy for my mother who was grieving the loss of her husband. I went through a series of destructive behaviors. As I look back to those times, I believe a grief recovery support group could have helped me out immensely. Working through my grief over my father's death took me on a journey that lasted over ten years. It was a series of pain, guilt, sorrow, anger, insight, forgiveness, healing, growth and then another cycle would begin again.

I have learned that grief is a process. For me it was a growing process which changed my personality and deepened my maturity. Patience, acceptance, joy, living in the present, and hoping for a better future were part of the other end of my grieving process.

Survivors of a deep loss experience a number of very specific symptoms. While different experts list different sets of symptoms, the following were part of mine, which James Taylor (not the singer) summarized in his book, Surviving Death:

- * Cold, clear, rationality an unemotional objectivity
- * Constant reminders when a person has died, seeing that person everywhere
- * A compulsion to revisit places events associated with the deceased
- * Anguish so overwhelming it becomes physical pain
- * Absolute apathy about money, about relationships, about responsibilities

* Vulnerability – a sense of being defeated by little things you could have brushed off at any other time

- * A desire to escape to another place, another time, especially former years
- * Physical fatigue that cannot be overcome by dogged determination

* Irrational lashing out at family members and friends, colleagues, and sudden rage at strangers

- * An obsession with honoring the memory of the past
- * Feelings of guilt a recurring refrain of "if only..."
- * Loss of personal goals and ambition
- * A sudden and unusual flowering of dreams
- * A desperate search for meaning

As you start to recognize some of your own symptoms, you will understand better how you are progressing through grief. A grief recovery support group can offer support and understanding as you journey through your grief.

You may say that you are doing just fine working through your grief. That is great. But you may notice a family member or a friend who is not. I encourage you to invite them to come to our grief recovery classes – and not just invite them, but come with them, giving them encouragement and morale support. There are thirteen sessions, beginning on Thursday February 21, 2008, 6 pm – 8 pm in the Laubach Room. Call the church office to register, 252-6705. Your friend, Pastor Greg

"In Sympathy"

We extend our prayers to the family of Nancy Farren, Nancy passed onto Eternal Life on Thurs. Jan. 31. Nancy was the wife of Joe Farren and the mother of Beth, Amy, Meg & JoNell and spouses and grandmother of 13 grandchildren. Rev. King officiated at her service on Wed. Feb. 6.

Nancy was a life long member of Greenmont-Oak Park Community Church. She was a devoted servant of our church in many ways: serving on many Committee's, Women's Guild, and leadership roles such as Official Board Chairperson throughout her life. She was passionate about connecting familes and children with the programs at church, building community and experiencing a full Christian life journey. May God comfort the family at this time of loss. - Your GOPCC family

"Lenten thoughts on hunger" During Lent, many Christians give up some favorite food. Others participate in special fasts as a way to remember those who are hungry. You may prefer to fast for just one day - or simply skip one meal. Contribute the money you save to your church or denomination's hunger appeal. -Bread for the World

"News from Kenya"

Dear SONKA Friends. Continue to hold our Kenyan friends in your prayers, as the political crisis continues in the Rift Valley, a distance from Rubate. The college at Rubate has re-opened after the holidays, and all students have returned. However, a number of students have lost their homes. Mary Kiwanuka, the Principal of the college, says,"that Kenya will solve its problems" and is hopeful. She says, "We are a people of faith". Let us join Mary in praying for peace among their people and the safety of our delegation that are planning to travel there next summer.
